Notes on creation of the LHDL model

The LHDL model has been generated, as described in the manuscript, based mainly on the volumetric representation of the muscles.

The gluteus maximus, initially generated using this methodology, needed manual adjustments (performed in OpenSim directly) in order to ensure an acceptable musculotendon path (not generating distortion of the lines of action) across the considered range of motion.